The Lecturer: Mr. Paul Atterbury

The domestic styles of the 20th century range from Art Nouveau and Art Deco to Modernism, with each decade making a definable contribution. This lecture looks at the development of the domestic interior through those decades, with reference to both avant garde and mass market ideas. It is a vision of how generations lived through changing times, and how their choices were affected by taste and fashion, technology, nostalgia and social change. It is also about the cycles of collecting that move things from the living room to the garden shed, and back again.
